JUDICIAL TRAINING CATALOGUE

The international dimension of the French National School for the Judiciary (ENM) is a reality and has been a stated aim ever since its creation. Its training courses for foreign judges and prosecutors represent a substantial proportion of the School's activity and are designed in a practical format to contribute to the construction of a quality justice system serving the rule of law.

The courses on offer in this catalogue aim to develop good practice in civil and criminal law with a constant focus on fundamental rights and topics identified as priorities for our foreign counterparts. The courses use innovative, active teaching methods and are designed to encourage exchanges between judges and prosecutors, but also more and more with other legal professionals. 2024, France's Olympic year, will be marked by multiple new challenges for the ENM. First of all, there will be challenges in terms of numbers, as the School's intake of trainee judges and prosecutors will be larger than ever before. Then challenges in terms of excellence and the need to adapt the training it provides to meet the expectations of the courts and the public. In particular the School will therefore be focusing on training future judges and prosecutors in team management, amicable dispute settlement policies and on getting ready for the coming digital transformation of court processes.

These topics concerning the changes facing the ENM will be the subject of exchanges with all our partners during the sessions proposed in this catalogue, but also during the ad hoc training courses developed to meet the demand for exchanges and expertise specific to each country. All of these training initiatives are helping to build an international judicial community based on common standards in judicial training and enrich the reflections of the ENM and all of its partners.

FRENCH NATIONAL SCHOOL FOR THE JUDICIARY

The only school for judges and prosecutors in France, the French National School for the Judiciary (Ecole Nationale de la Magistrature: ENM) was founded in 1958. It has the status of a national public administrative establishment and is under the authority of the French Ministry of Justice. This status gives the school autonomy in its administrative and financial management. Based in Bordeaux and Paris, the French National School for the Judiciary recruits French judges and public prosecutors annually. It designs and provides both their initial 31-month training and their in-service training throughout their careers. The School also trains other legal professionals as well as judges and prosecutors from outside France.

A POWERFUL INTERNATIONAL COMMITMENT

From the very first year of its existence, the National School for the Judiciary opted for a broad international outlook. As a central player in the European construction in terms of judicial training, the school is active throughout the world, building, improving and modernising training for judges and prosecutors. Conscious of the enriching effect of exchanges between practitioners in different countries with their own judicial cultures, each year the ENM sends numerous French judges and prosecutors to train abroad and welcomes within its walls judges and prosecutors from a variety of countries.

The International Department of the ENM aims to share the expertise it has acquired over more than 60 years. In so doing, it contributes to promoting continental law and, more generally, to maintaining the rule of law all over the world.

An enhanced interprofessional approach

A range of different training methods can boost interprofessional relations with other players in the judicial world (lawyers, notaries, court clerks, etc.), but also with the police, gendarmerie, prisons administration or the judicial juvenile protection service, for example. Their different viewpoints on their respective professional practices are enriched by these exchanges, which foster better mutual understanding of the issues facing the different players.

Specialist training courses

Three specialist training cycles have been developed:

- A specialist criminal cycle which will allow judges and prosecutors to develop complementary skills to help them deal with complex cases, set up investigative strategies and master the tools of cooperation in criminal matters.
- A specialist civil cycle which will allow participants to gain high-level training on essential branches of civil law, with content covering the latest issues in French, international and comparative law and a very operational approach through practical case studies and a wide range of different approaches, such as the «International Arbitration» session, a new edition to the catalogue for 2024.
- A European Judicial Studies cycle (CEJUE)
was inaugurated in 2022, the year of the French Presidency of the European Union (PFUE) to mark even more clearly the ENM's involvement in European judicial training. The aim of this cycle is to foster, through very high level exchanges and study visits to strategic places in the European Judicial Area, the emergence of a judicial community of excellence in the field of European judicial practices.

A training offer that adapts to different needs

Wishing to build on its experience in terms of the adaptation and development of online educational content, the International Department has developed a custom training offering that is accessible remotely.

TRAINING FOR TRAINERS

IN BRIEF

A training course focussing on techniques for course design, delivery of training programmes, leading training sessions, developing assessments and monitoring trainees.

CONTEXT

Aware that justice of a high standard requires excellent training for judicial personnel, judges and prosecutors in particular, many countries have chosen to create and develop judicial training institutes providing, among other things, practical initial and in-service training for judges and prosecutors, and sometimes for other judicial professions.

This professionalisation of training activities implies further training in turn. The purpose of the «Trainer Training» session is to enable personnel (judges, prosecutors or others) in charge of judicial training to design course content, roll out programmes and training materials, dispense courses, assess results, make any adjustments to content that might be necessary, conduct assessments and monitor trainees.

TEACHING

Based on the know-how the ENM has acquired since its creation, the 2 weeks of training given by an external trainer specialised in instructional engineering and the school's own teaching staff specialised in adult education, will address the following topics in particular:

- Organisational aspects of a training institution
- Methodology of adult education;
- Specificities of judicial training;
- Defining training objectives;
- Designing a teaching programme;
- Running a training session;
- Choosing methods;
- Designing teaching materials.

To ensure the course is interactive, each participant will give a presentation of the training institute they work for and prior to their participation will provide the ENM, with its statutes, training programmes, practical cases, assessment questionnaires and any documents that might be necessary to offer the other participants a good understanding of training issues in their country and any specific difficulties there might be, so that the group can work, with the assistance of the trainers, to put forward the best possible solutions.

INTRODUCTION TO THE FRENCH JUSTICE SYSTEM

IN BRIEF

A course to get a general overview of the main principles behind the working of the French justice system.

CONTEXT

The French judicial system has been shaped by the country's complex history and is based on principles that guarantee respect for fundamental freedoms, such as equality before the law, impartiality and independence. Based on these principles, French justice and judicial institutions have adapted to changes in society, however, to provide a justice that is more protective, more accessible, closer to citizens and also more modern.

The English language training provides participants with a better understanding of the French judicial organisation, its history, evolution and workings. Above all, it constitutes the first step towards constructing a space of mutual trust and international cooperation between States.

The course is usefully rounded off with a 3-day placement with a court to facilitate the foreign judges and prosecutors' immersion in the French judicial system.

TEACHING

This training course is intended for professionals wishing to get a better grasp of the working of the French justice system they sometimes have to work with. It allows them to reflect and exchange on the main principles that underpin any judicial system.

INTEGRATION INTO THE INITIAL TRAINING COURSE

IN BRIEF

Integration into the initial training cycle of judicial trainees at the School (6 months) and then on a court internship (5 months). This long training course enables participants to acquire not only professional skills, but also soft skills and know-how going beyond the knowledge learned at university.

CONTEXT

From the School's beginnings, overseas judges and prosecutors were offered the opportunity to take the initial training cycle in France, in a special «international class» at the National School for the Judiciary. Since 2006, present or future judges and prosecutors from abroad have been integrated into the intakes of the School alongside French students. Apart from a number of external placements that they do not have to complete, overseas students follow the entire course: classroom training in Bordeaux, placement in a court and external placements with partners of the justice system. If they complete their studies successfully, the School issues them with a diploma.

TEACHING

During their tuition in Bordeaux, students acquire basic skills (drafting judicial decisions, conducting hearings, judicial questioning, etc.) and techniques (psychology, languages, IT) in tutorials, workshops, role plays and conferences. The court internship lasts 5 months and enables the future judges or prosecutors to work with all the specialist judges (investigating judge, sentence enforcement judge, etc.) and also with the prosecutor's office. Supported by their tutor, they can familiarise themselves with a law firm and a bailiff's office or visit partner institutions. Admission to the course is by a prior examination organised by French Embassies. The examination includes a written paper on a general theme relating to the working of justice and its place in society (set by the ENM). An oral interview will also be conducted with a representative from the Cooperation Department or the French embassy, in order to assess the candidate's motivation and, for non-French-speaking countries, their skill in the French language.

ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL INVESTIGATIONS

IN BRIEF

This session addresses the main economic offences and investigation methods and strategies for complex cases: multidisciplinary exchanges between professionals.

CONTEXT

The opening up of capital markets, the growing complexity of relations between economic players and the internationalisation of organised crime, including in the business world, have obliged political and judicial authorities to create legal tools to combat these phenomena that undermine the economy, weaken public finances and damage the social pact. Faced with ever-more astute and better organised forms of crime, judges, prosecutors and investigation services have had to innovate in their approaches to fight this particular form of crime more effectively.

TEACHING

This session is an opportunity for participants to exchange their technical knowledge and look into the balance between the need to fight this kind of crime and protecting the economic and social interests of the nation.

The top French specialists in the fight against economic and financial crime will be addressing the following working themes, among others:

- Definition of financial offences and the fundamentals of reading accounting and financial analysis documents;
- Description of the specifics of police investigation techniques;
- judicial handling of economic and financial offences: prevention and enforcement, role of the prosecutor's office in dealing with distressed companies, policy on financial crime, the examination phase;
- Description of the role of the specialist professionals, experts and public institutions working alongside the justice system: Intelligence Processing and Action against Illicit Financial Networks Unit (TRACFIN);
- International cooperation in the judicial handling of large-scale corruption.

THE JUDICIAL TREATMENT OF TERRORISM AND VIOLENT RADICALISATION

IN BRIEF

Analysis of the issues and legal solutions, presentation of the institutional stakeholders and the changes in investigation and prosecution methods in respect of fundamental rights: multidisciplinary exchanges between professionals in charge of the fight against terrorism.

CONTEXT

The threat of terrorism lies at the heart of social, political and judicial concerns in our countries today. Its internationalisation and spread are additional sources of fears and difficulties for the institutions dedicated to the fight against terrorism. In France as in other countries, the judicial authorities are directly concerned by these issues. From the mid-1980s onwards, the French justice system had to cope with the threat of terrorism and to modify its approach.

This seminar analyses the specific criteria that apply to the indictment of terrorist acts, the definition of offences, the inclusion of intelligence in judicial procedures, and generally the way States organise and optimise the judicial response to radicalisation and terrorism. It looks at the techniques used in the domestic context, as well as within the broader context of the international instruments adopted in this field.

TEACHING

This is a practical training course, whose aim is firstly to describe and analyse current manifestations of radicalisation and the terrorist threat, and secondly, to present and comment on how the judicial system deals with them at different stages of the investigation, the trial and the enforcement of sentences. Consisting of lectures and round table sessions, the course presents hands-on experience of these subjects, in particular a practical description of how competing competences are implemented, thanks to the participation of academic researchers and national and international actors in the fight against terrorism.

ORGANISED CRIME AND JUDICIAL COOPERATION

IN BRIEF

A presentation of the ways of fighting organised crime and of mutual assistance in criminal matters, from the legal, practical and operational points of view. Training based on multidisciplinary exchanges between professionals.

CONTEXT

Like terrorism, organised crime requires a response adapted to the scale of the actions and resources of criminal organisations, for whom borders are not only no obstacle, but often provide a perverse form of protection. The illegal activities of international crime organisations represent a direct threat to democratic societies. Like other countries, France is obviously also affected by this phenomenon. Judges, prosecutors and investigation services have had to adapt to provide an effective response to organised crime, and in France this has involved the creation of Specialised Inter-Regional Courts (JIRS), a national court in charge of the fight against organised crime (JUNALCO) and an increase in assets investigations and in mutual assistance in criminal matters. The aim of this seminar is to exchange technical knowledge between professionals in the fight against organised crime. Whatever the judicial system in operation in the States, whether it is continental, mixed, adversarial or common law, the technical fundamentals that are addressed during this training course should enable each participant to share the French experience of the threat, but above all of its solutions, and to gather the best practices from abroad.

TEACHING

As this training session is designed as an advanced course for experienced participants, the number of places has been limited in order to facilitate exchanges. Taught by leading French specialists with experience in the field of the fight against organised crime, this session will cover numerous topics: the current state of the threat, the centralisation and regionalisation of dedicated services, collaboration with the intelligence services, infiltration techniques, tapping techniques, working with informants, etc. It will also focus on financial strategy, joint investigation teams, and spontaneous information sharing. Finally, advanced international criminal investigation techniques intended to dismantle criminal operations operating, for example, in international drug trafficking, cross-border arms and human trafficking, will also be covered.

This session is completed by practical workshops organised during a visit to a specialised department.

INTIMATE PARTNER VIOLENCE

IN BRIEF

A multi-disciplinary, in-depth analysis of domestic violence and the corresponding judicial responses, in both criminal and civil matters.

CONTEXT

Domestic violence exists in all societies. It is an issue that necessarily comes up in legal systems which often have to deal with this type of violence in a variety of cases, both civil and criminal. Faced with this large-scale phenomenon, judges and prosecutors confronted with these situations need a common core of knowledge in order to understand the mechanisms behind this violence and the systemic responses that can be implemented. The aim of this training is to offer a broad view of conjugal violence. French legislation on protection against domestic violence will be presented, and in particular the most recent initiatives. The course will also address the psychological and/or sociological mechanisms involved in such violence, the institutional framework and partnerships for taking care of victims, as well as the criminal and jurisdictional policies that can be considered. The handling of the offenders and the place of children in such proceedings will also be studied.

TEACHING

Researchers, judges, prosecutors, investigating officers and psychiatrists will present their work or their innovative practices in the field. Fruitful discussion after the presentations will be facilitated by the diverse backgrounds of the participants.

INVESTIGATING AND PROSECUTING: THE CHALLENGES OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE

IN BRIEF

A training course that presents and allows participants to put into practice investigative and prosecutorial methods specific to the most serious international crimes and to get a better understanding of the challenges of international criminal justice.

CONTEXT

The fruits of a long process of evolution, international criminal law and international humanitarian law are now a thread that runs through international conflicts and are binding on States. Both the international courts, in all their various forms, and now the national courts based in particular on the notion of universal jurisdiction, will be called upon to deal with these very particular investigations. Subject to the challenges inherent in cross-border cases and the complexity of the offences, these investigations often touch on organised crime, financial crimes and terrorism-related issues.

This course, which is designed to cover the legal and practical aspects of these issues, should provide participants with useful tools they can use while presenting the political and diplomatic issues necessarily involved in this type of prosecution.

Involving national and international contributors, the course also includes a visit to the gendarmerie forensic institute, the IRCGN, and attendance at a trial at the assize court in Paris, if there is one in progress at the time of the course.

This course enables French-speaking foreign judges, prosecutors and investigators to:

- Acquire theoretical and practical knowledge of the international criminal justice system;
- To get to grips with the legal and political issues involved in an international criminal case;
- Handle the administration of an international criminal trial;
- Understand the place of the victims in an international criminal case and their compensation.

This face-to-face course is organised in 6 themes:

1. A justice and a law under construction (the Rule of Law);
2. Meeting the challenges of cooperation between States and the risk of politicisation;
3. Overcoming temporal and geographical distance in the building of a case;
4. Administering a «historic» trial in an international criminal case;
5. Dealing with witnesses and oral evidence;
6. How and who to compensate when there is a large number of victims.

TEACHING

This face-to-face course is intended for judges, prosecutors and investigators wishing to find out more about and acquire an overall vision of the theoretical and practical issues involved in the international criminal justice system.

CORRUPTION: DETECTION, PREVENTION, REPRESSION

IN BRIEF
A presentation of the ways of preventing and fighting corruption from the legal, practical and operational points of view. Training based on multidisciplinary exchanges between professionals.

CONTEXT
No country in the world is untouched by corruption which constitutes a serious threat to democracy. In some cases it reaches proportions such that it threatens to stifle economic growth and undermine efforts to introduce good governance. In the long term, it leads to the breakdown of the social fabric and distorts the economic system and political structure of States, to the detriment of the population.
Intended for judges, prosecutors and other officials dealing with administrative or judicial management and prevention of corruption or similar acts, this session aims to raise awareness and train these professionals in both the prevention and repression of this phenomenon.
Among other things, the course will make available to participants the expertise of the French Anticorruption Agency (AFA), as well as technical and legal tools that will enable them to detect, regulate and deal with this type of crime more effectively.

TEACHING
The programme brings together stakeholders from the different sectors concerned: the French Anticorruption Agency (AFA), representatives of the Network of Corruption Prevention Authorities, financial judges, prosecutors, specialised investigators, lawyers, academics, representatives of the Group of States against Corruption (GRECO), financial intelligence services such as the Intelligence Processing and Action against Illicit Financial Networks Unit (TRACFIN), high-ranking civil servants from the Ministries for Justice, Finance or Foreign Affairs, leaders from the private sector, etc.
They take part in the session in the form of lectures, round tables and debates in order to share their experience and knowledge of this problem and the steps taken to deal with it. The aim of the session is to increase awareness of corruption issues and to enhance practices in order to prevent and repress it more effectively, both in France and internationally.

CYBERCRIME

IN BRIEF

Overview of the issues surrounding cybercrime and its international aspects, recent international developments, digital investigations and the judicial treatment of this type of crime.

CONTEXT

Internet is driving progress in many areas and is omnipresent in our daily lives, but it is also a space without borders in which cybercrime can flourish. Today's «cyberthreats» target not only businesses (including the banking sector in particular), but also individuals and States. This session aims to help judges, prosecutors and investigating officers to progress in their handling of proceedings, by focusing on practical approaches to the different phases (locating and identifying the offenders, gaining access to data, measures to prevent the disappearance of digital evidence, etc.).

TEACHING

In an interdisciplinary approach involving French cybercrime specialists, this session offers, theoretical presentations, accounts of practical experiences and case studies, with the aim of:

- Providing an overview of the threat posed by cybercrime, more particularly the ransomware phenomenon, child pornography, the dark web;
- Presenting the mechanisms that exist for international mutual assistance in cybercrime investigation, the tools facilitating international police and judicial cooperation;
- Describing how cryptocurrencies work and the measures taken to detect, seize and handle cryptocurrencies;
- Presenting the systems that allow open source analysis, information gathering and investigations using open sources on the internet.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS LITIGATION FUNDAMENTALS AND PRACTICE

IN BRIEF

A large number of intellectual property cases have received widespread attention. How should they be handled? How can the new disputes arising from digital developments and internet be addressed?

CONTEXT

The protection of their intellectual property is an important issue for economic operators, generating specialised legislation on a scale that is constantly growing with the use of internet, which has proved to be a vector of new types of rights infringements.

This course offers an introduction to the main intellectual property rights (patents, trademarks, designs, copyright and neighbouring rights). It is also targeted at judges who have already had to deal with this type of litigation and who wish to enhance their knowledge in this technical and constantly changing field, by offering them an overview of the most recent French and European case law on the validity of IP rights and infringement, with a particular focus on the specificities of proving and compensating for damage.

It will also address intellectual property rights infringements committed online, as well as the new Unified Patent Court and the European patent with unitary effect, a new type of industrial property protection designed to apply in the European States participating in the agreement.

TEACHING

This training course will review the case law and regulatory developments in intellectual property and provide participants with a better understanding of their impacts, in particular on the strategies of economic stakeholders. It will therefore address disputes generated by the internet and the different procedural options in matters of intellectual property, through discussion between the participants and case studies.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION

IN BRIEF

The aim of this session is to present French law on international arbitration as it has been shaped by over 150 years of Court of Cassation case law and the presence in Paris of the International Chamber of Commerce, which plays a leading role in this field.

CONTEXT

Protection against legal liability is one of the main purposes of contracts in international trade.

This requires the assurance that in the event of a dispute arising, it can be settled within a reasonable timeframe, by independent, impartial judges, familiar with business practice, in accordance with the law specified in the contract, by a decision that is rapidly enforceable and in a setting that ensures discretion in the proceedings. The use of arbitration, where it is provided for in the contract at issue or where it results from a subsequent agreement or is provided for in an investment agreement, contributes, in the eyes of many economic actors, to the achievement of those objectives.

In this respect, French law on arbitration, shaped by the case law of Court of Cassation and the Court of Appeal of Paris, before being enshrined in the Code of Civil Procedure, has the particularity of encouraging recourse to this alternative method of dispute resolution, notably by giving arbitrators priority in ruling on their own competence, by giving the parties equal rights in the choice of the arbitrators, by ensuring the latter's independence and impartiality and by limiting the oversight of the state judge. This traditional favouring of arbitration in French law is without doubt one of the reasons why Paris is of the main venues for international arbitration.

TEACHING

After a presentation of the different stages in the arbitral procedure, the participants will reflect together on how this method of dispute resolution can be adapted to their national and international context and to their role as state judges in the overseeing and enforcement of arbitral awards.

This session will include different visits, to the Court of Cassation or the Court of Appeal of Paris, as well as to the International Chamber of Commerce, where the participants will be invited to work on concrete case studies.

INTERNATIONAL FAMILY LAW

IN BRIEF

The geographical mobility of people and couples has led to all kinds of cross-border disputes as well as applications for the protection of vulnerable people. To deal with these situations, international conventions and European Regulations have implemented a framework of cooperation and a specific set of rules under international law.

CONTEXT

The increase in international couples and family mobility is leading to a multiplication in cross-border issues as well as an increasing need to protect the most vulnerable, minors in particular. Several international conventions and European Regulations have provided some solutions for these situations by laying down rules on jurisdiction, conflicts of law and the circulation of decisions. This private international family law can, however, be complex for practitioners to negotiate.

The objective of this training is to present the methodology to follow in international family disputes, to provide useful information on the applicable conventions and the tools available. The frameworks for cooperation in family cases will also be presented, notably the role of Central Authorities and the various networks. The course will take a closer look at certain types of disputes such as international child abductions, cross-border parental authority conflicts, separations of couples and the international protection of vulnerable minors and adults. Finally, the course will consider what the next steps might be in the construction of international family law, and the challenges that are still to be addressed.

TEACHING

This session will enable participants to acquire the reflexes they need to resolve an international family conflict or to take cross-border protection measures. The learners will improve their knowledge of the relevant international and European texts and the frameworks for cooperation. Time will be allowed for discussion so that participants can compare and contrast their practices, particularly through the study of concrete cases, and get a better understanding of what cooperation involves and the prospects for the future.

JUSTICE AND ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION

IN BRIEF

The protection of the environment demands a new and complex judicial response which is studied in depth in this training course.

CONTEXT

Environmental protection is a challenge that faces all of us, and it is now reflected in the justice system under the aegis of conventional or customary international law and domestic law (constitutions and framework laws on the environment). This is emphasised by the 1992 Rio Declaration on Environment and Development, which refers to the existence of a «a new and equitable global partnership through the creation of new levels of cooperation among States, key sectors of societies and people, working towards international agreements which respect the interests of all and protect the integrity of the global environmental and developmental system, recognizing the integral and interdependent nature of the Earth, our home».

In practice, this dimension has translated into the development of new disputes, which can appear complex and which the judicial world has a duty to take fully on board - both the administrative and the civil and criminal aspects - and which often include international dimensions. Judges and prosecutors with the ordinary courts must therefore have a mastery of these issues and develop innovative ways of working and be able to draw on familiar tools in these highly cross-cutting and important disputes.

This training addresses the legal framework specific to environmental protection, the instruments of judicial cooperation, in particular the international mutual legal assistance mechanisms and the institutional stakeholders, both French and international. It also looks into the specific techniques for handling environmental disputes, in particular in cases of marine environmental damage. It emphasises a multidisciplinary and interactive approach.

TEACHING

This course gives priority to discussions between participants and to the international dimension of environmental protection. After some time set aside for a multidisciplinary analysis of the main environmental risks, the course will address the civil and criminal dimensions of the judicial protection of the environment.

JUDICIAL MANAGEMENT

IN BRIEF

Presentation of the management techniques suited to the particular structure of a court, particularly as regards the way it operates and the status of the judges and prosecutors working in it.

CONTEXT

Management is the implementation by an organisation of its human and material resources to achieve its objectives. It covers the ideas of administration and steering applied to an organisation.

Management therefore consists at once of: setting (strategic and operational) objectives, choosing the means to achieve them, implementing those means, checking implementation and the results obtained and, finally, imposing regulation based on those checks. Judges and prosecutors are trained to exercise their judicial roles, but they generally receive no training in management, even though these skills are indispensable when they reach management positions. This is especially the case for new heads of courts, who will necessarily be confronted with human and organisational issues requiring specific training.

The aim of this course is to present management techniques suited to the specific structure of a court, particularly as regards the way it operates and the status of the judges and prosecutors working in it. It also provides an introduction to some effective methods of leading a group, supporting staff and dealing with the natural resistance that arises when people are faced with a new situation. It is intended both for newly appointed heads of courts, as well as their more experienced counterparts who would like to reflect on and share their practices.

This course is intended both for newly appointed heads of courts as well as their more experienced judges and prosecutors who would like to reflect on and share their practices as well as the tools and methods specific to their judicial organisation

Taught by experienced heads of courts and specialists, this training course is open to anyone holding a management position in a court.

Plenty of time will be allowed for discussions between participants, both at lectures and in themed workshops.

For French-speaking judges and prosecutors, a few places are available for in-service training immersion sessions with French judges, prosecutors and other justice professionals. These sessions are organised by the in-service training department (FC) and the specialist professional training department (DFPS).

EUROPEAN JUDICIAL STUDIES CYCLE (CEJUE)

IN BRIEF

A training cycle that brings together a mixed audience of French and European judges, prosecutors and lawyers and focuses on some of the major issues in European justice seen through a formative and dynamic interprofessional prism.

CONTEXT

The European Judicial Studies cycle (CEJUE) is designed for French judges, prosecutors and lawyers, but also for those of other European Union Member States wishing to gain a comprehensive command of all the European issues.

This cycle covers both the theoretical and the practical aspects of the stages of European integration, the functioning of the institutions, the development of the standard, the major European policies, the synergies with the main international forums (UN, OECD, Council of Europe). It offers an overall vision of substantive law and the cooperation instruments. The main aim is to enable participants to acquire a «European reflex» and expertise in judicial issues that include a European dimension.

Announced on the occasion of the French Presidency of the European Union and organised in 2023, this will be the 2nd edition in 2024.

TEACHING

The cycle includes 8 training sequences, mainly taking place in Paris, with sessions on at least 2 occasions in European cities which are the seat of important political or judicial institutions: Luxembourg, Strasbourg, Brussels, The Hague.

- The teaching methods include presentations of the institutions (although «ex-cathedra» lectures will be kept to a minimum) combined with preparatory and documentary work done in mixed groups;
- Generous amounts of time will be allowed for numerous debates on major themes between the trainees organised by volunteers;
- Group work throughout the course, on subjects set at the beginning of the cycle and worked on throughout for final submission at the end;
- Practical work based on real-life cases;
- Encounters organised within the institutions, of a concrete and practical kind only, with the possibility of in-person placements in between the course modules.

GENERAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS

Participation of foreign professionals in training courses organised by the International Department of the ENM.

The ENM's international activities, in particular the possibility for foreign judges, prosecutors and members of the police criminal investigation departments and civil servants in agencies collaborating with the justice system to take part in training courses in France is part of the School's international cooperation activities.

LANGUAGE

Unless interpreting is provided, admission of foreign professionals is dependent on their having a good enough working knowledge of French. This is particularly necessary for immersion activities with French judges and prosecutors.

ENROLMENT

Concerning the participation in the training courses organised by the ENM, for participants from non-European Union countries, applications are made through the French Embassy by the ministry the candidate works for or by the authorities in charge of training in the country of origin. These formalities are part of the regulations governing the ENM and no exceptions can be made.

OATH

It is also a mandatory requirement for trainees whose course consists of or includes a placement with a court to swear, before the Court of Appeal, the oath provided for by the Law of 11 July 1975 by which they undertake to respect the secrecy of the work of the court and its instruments.

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS

For all courses taking place in France, the ENM charges, for each foreign judge or prosecutor or other participant, the tuition fees specified in the description of each course in the annual catalogue. A quotation is provided for every enquiry.

These tuition fees are determined by a deliberation of the ENM's Board of Administration, which sets the fees actually applicable. The prices quoted in this catalogue are therefore subject to modification if the Board so decides.

All courses must be paid for exclusively by bank transfer upon enrolment or at the latest one month before the course start date. Payment must have reached the accounts office (Agence comptable) of the ENM before the course begins.

There is no cancellation fee, and tuition fees are payable whatever form the course takes (face-to-face or online). Only cancellation by the ENM will give rise to a refund, and only if it is not possible to postpone the course (please enquire concerning the application of any particular health crisis-related conditions).

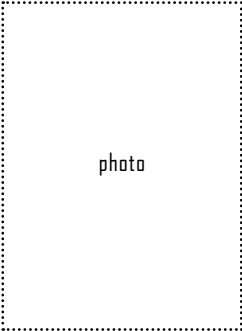

COVERAGE OF TRAINEES' FEES

As a general rule, these tuition fees are not charged directly to the trainees, but paid to the ENM either by the authority they work for, after acceptance of the quotation provided by the ENM, or by the Ministry for Europe and Foreign Affairs, where the judges and prosecutors benefit from a French government bursary under an international cooperation scheme. In this last case, the material aspects of their stay in France are managed by an organisation accredited by the Ministry of Europe and Foreign Affairs:
