INTERNATIONAL

JUDICIAL TRAINING CATALOGUE

The French National School for the Judiciary's international perspective is very much a part of its history and central to its mission: promoting international standards in judicial training, creating a judicial community that transcends borders, and enriching research and training at the School all contribute to the spread of the rule of law, benefiting both French and foreign judges and prosecutors.

The School's international activities are conducted in around a hundred different countries, with foreign judges, prosecutors and other judicial professionals attending courses in Paris or Bordeaux. Courses specially designed for them include practical workshops and visits to different institutions, and are available with interpretation into several languages.

The themes in this 2025 international catalogue have been carefully chosen to respond to the most pressing challenges faced by judicial professionals: digital technology and artificial intelligence, whose development in the justice field is fuelled by international exchanges, the professional ethics of judges and prosecutors addressed as a practical issue for the rule of law, maritime criminal law, which is arousing growing interest, transnational organised crime approached from the angle of the fight against drug trafficking as well as human trafficking, and the trafficking of cultural property. Once again this year's offering includes courses on international criminal law, the fight against corruption, terrorism, cybercrime and financial crime which encompass all the latest legislative, technical and training innovations. Courses in civil law, a field where the stakes are high, both on an international level and in terms of economic attractiveness, will cover family law, intellectual property and international arbitration.

Another specific feature of the 2025 international catalogue is that certain courses are also open to French judges and prosecutors with the aim of encouraging dialogue between the participants, which is indispensable to gain a good grounding in the most operational aspects of international cooperation in the justice field.

I hope that these courses, given by recognised experts, will help to build an international judicial community made up of judges, prosecutors, lawyers, investigators, court clerks and other professionals committed to spreading the rule of law.

FRENCH NATIONAL SCHOOL FOR THE JUDICIARY

The only school for judges and prosecutors in France, the French National School for the Judiciary (Ecole Nationale de la Magistrature: ENM) was founded in 1958. It has the status of a national public administrative establishment and is under the authority of the French Ministry of Justice. This status gives the school autonomy in its administrative and financial management. Based in Bordeaux and Paris, the French National School for the Judiciary recruits French judges and public prosecutors annually. It designs and provides both their initial 31-month training and their in-service training throughout their careers. The School also trains other legal professionals as well as judges and prosecutors from outside France.

A POWERFUL INTERNATIONAL COMMITMENT

From the very first year of its existence, the National School for the Judiciary opted for a broad international outlook. As a central player in the European construction in terms of judicial training, the school is active throughout the world, building, improving and modernising training for judges and prosecutors. Conscious of the enriching effect of exchanges between practitioners in different countries with their own judicial cultures, each year the ENM sends numerous French judges and prosecutors to train abroad and welcomes within its walls judges and prosecutors from a variety of countries.

The International Department of the ENM aims to share the expertise it has acquired over more than 65 years. In so doing, it contributes to promoting continental law and, more generally, to maintaining the rule of law all over the world.

TRAINING FOR TRAINERS

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Aware that justice of a high standard requires excellent training for judicial personnel, judges and prosecutors in particular, many countries have chosen to create and develop judicial training institutes providing, among other things, practical initial and in-service training for judges and prosecutors, and sometimes for other judicial professions.

This professionalisation of training activities implies further training in turn. The purpose of the «Trainer Training» session is to enable personnel (judges, prosecutors or others) in charge of judicial training to design course content, roll out programmes and training materials, dispense courses, assess results, make any adjustments to content that might be necessary, conduct assessments and monitor trainees.

Training objectives

- Introduction to the organisational aspects of a training institute;
- Understanding adult training methodologies and the specific aspects of judicial training;
- Mastering the setting of training objectives;
- Design of an educational programme and a sequence of training actions;
- Discovery of different methods of knowledge transmission;
- Design of teaching materials.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

To make the course interactive, each participant will give a presentation of the training institute they work for and will provide the ENM, before they arrive in France, with its statutes, training programmes, practical cases, questionnaires and any documents that might be necessary to offer the other participants a good understanding of training issues in their country and any specific difficulties there might be, so that the group can work, with the assistance of the trainers, to put forward the best possible solutions.

The main educational resources and teaching methods used are: audiovisual aids, documentation and course materials, practical application exercises and exercise keys. The trainer evaluates the progress made by each participant throughout the course, principally through practical exercises.

The participant also completes a positioning test before and after the training to evaluate the skills acquired.

The 2-week long course is taught by ENM lecturers and external contributors, instructional engineering and adult education specialists.

INTRODUCTION TO THE FRENCH JUSTICE SYSTEM

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

The French judicial system has been shaped by the country's complex history and is based on principles that guarantee respect for fundamental freedoms, such as equality before the law, impartiality and independence. This course is aimed at law professionals from all over the world who are interested in a comparative approach to law and in acquiring more in-depth knowledge of the organisation, history, development and working of the French judicial system.

It is intended to constitute a step in the construction of mutual trust between professionals involved in the judicial system, a prerequisite for international cooperation. In addition to a number of visits (police station, Court of Appeal, Council of State), the course is usefully rounded off with a 3-day placement with a court to facilitate the foreign judges and prosecutors' immersion in the French judicial system.

INTEGRATION INTO THE INITIAL TRAINING COURSE

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Integration of judicial trainees into the initial training cycle at the School (6 months) and then on a court internship (5 months). This long training course enables participants to acquire not only professional skills, but also the soft skills and know-how needed by judges and prosecutors.

This integration of foreign judges and prosecutors into classes of French judicial trainees is intended to give international trainees an in-depth knowledge of the French justice system, but also to forge lasting ties between French and foreign judges and prosecutors in a spirit of mutual enrichment. Apart from a number of external placements that they do not have to complete, overseas trainees follow the entire course: classroom training in Bordeaux, court placement and external placements with partners of the justice system. If they complete their studies successfully, the School issues them with a diploma.

Training objectives

Trainees acquire basic skills (drafting judicial decisions, conducting hearings, judicial questioning, etc.) and techniques (psychology, languages, IT) in tutorials, workshops, role plays and conferences, completed by a court placement.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

The educational resources and teaching methods are based on documentation and course materials, discussion sessions between participants and themed workshops.

The trainer evaluates the progress made by each participant throughout the course, principally through practical exercises and written work handed in. In addition, participants take exams at the end of the course, are evaluated at hearings conducted by a regional training coordinator judge/prosecutor to validate the skills acquired.

Participants take an entrance exam to assess their level of legal knowledge and their French language skills. They are then selected based on their application, by the members of the ENM's International Department, taking into account their results in the exam, their motivation and the coherence of their career path so far.

ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL INVESTIGATIONS

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

The opening up of capital markets, the growing complexity of relations between economic players and the internationalisation of organised crime have obliged political and judicial authorities to create new and adaptable legal tools. Faced with ever more astute and structured criminal practices that undermine the economy, judges, prosecutors and investigative agencies are constantly upgrading their methods to fight this particular form of crime more effectively. This requires strong international cooperation and up-to-date knowledge of the role played by digital technology. This course allows participants and experts to exchange good practices on the operational issues involved in detection and investigation, which is essential to the fight against a multi-faceted and ever-changing form of international crime.

Training objectives

This session is an opportunity for participants to exchange their technical knowledge and look into the balance between the need to fight this kind of crime and protecting economic and social interests.

Participants will have the opportunity to develop their legal knowledge on the fight against economic and financial crime, primarily:

- Introduction to the legal framework, definitions of financial offences and the fundamentals of reading accounting and financial analysis documents;
- Comprehension of the specifics of police investigation techniques;
- Judicial handling of economic and financial offences: prevention and enforcement, role of the prosecutor's office in dealing with distressed companies, policy on financial crime, the examination phase;
- Discovery of the role of the specialist professionals, experts and public institutions working alongside the justice system: Intelligence Processing and Action against Illicit Financial Networks Unit (TRACFIN);
- Training in the instruments of international cooperation in the judicial handling of large-scale corruption.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

The educational resources and teaching methods are based on documentation and course materials, discussion sessions between participants, themed workshops and role plays of investigations into money-laundering circuits.

THE JUDICIAL TREATMENT OF TERRORISM AND VIOLENT RADICALISATION

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Analysis of the issues and legal solutions, presentation of the institutional stakeholders and the changes in investigation and prosecution methods in respect of fundamental rights: multidisciplinary exchanges between professionals in charge of the fight against terrorism.

The threat of terrorism lies at the heart of States' social, political and judicial concerns. Its internationalisation and spread are additional sources of fears and difficulties for the institutions dedicated to the fight against terrorism. In France as in other countries, the judicial authorities are directly concerned by these issues. From the mid-1980s onwards, the French justice system had to cope with the threat of terrorism and to modify its approach.

This training course analyses the specific criteria that apply to the indictment of terrorist acts, the definition of offences, the inclusion of intelligence in judicial procedures, and generally the way States organise and optimise the judicial response to radicalisation and terrorism. It looks at the techniques used in the domestic context, as well as within the broader context of the international instruments adopted in this field.

Training objectives

- Gain knowledge of the current manifestations of radicalisation and the terrorist threat;
- Explain and comment upon the judicial treatment of these cases at national and international level;
- Understand the different phases of terrorism investigations, the holding of the trial and the serving of the sentence.

TEACHING

Consisting of lectures and round table sessions, the course presents hands-on experience of these subjects, in particular a practical description of how competing competences are implemented, thanks to the participation of academic researchers and national and international actors in the fight against terrorism.

A test will be conducted at the start of the session to assess the participants' prior knowledge. There will be another test at the end of the session to evaluate what they have learned.

ORGANISED CRIME AND INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION: DRUG TRAFFICKING

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Organised crime represents a major, multi-faceted threat to States. It requires a response adapted to the scale of the actions and resources deployed by criminal organisations, which have no regard for national borders, in particular where drug trafficking is concerned. In France, judges, prosecutors and the investigative agencies have restructured to meet these challenges. This has included the setting up of the Specialised Interregional Courts (JIRSSs), as well as a national court to deal with organised crime (JUNALCO). In addition, international mutual legal assistance, asset investigations and the seizure/confiscation of assets are effective responses that will benefit from smooth exchanges between the different operational players. This course, as well as presenting the legal and technical situations, is intended to facilitate the sharing of experiences between French and foreign participants, thereby contributing to the fight against international drug trafficking orchestrated by criminal organisations. Taught by leading French specialists with experience in the field of the fight against organised crime, this session will cover a wide range of topics: the current state of the threat, the charges and offences involved, the centralisation and regionalisation of dedicated investigative departments, collaboration with the intelligence services, infiltration techniques, tapping techniques, working with informants, etc. It will also focus on financial strategy, joint investigation teams and spontaneous information sharing. Finally, advanced international criminal investigation techniques in order to dismantle the criminal organisations involved in international drug trafficking.

Training objectives

- Present the methods of fighting criminal organisations and the possibilities for mutual legal assistance;
- Understand the existing legal, practical and operational mechanisms.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

This course includes both interactive theoretical presentations and practical workshops organised during a visit to a specialist department.

The trainer evaluates the progress made by each participant throughout the course, principally through practical exercises.

A test will be conducted at the start of the session to assess the participants' prior knowledge. There will be another test at the end of the session to evaluate what they have learned.

ORGANISED CRIME AND JUDICIAL COOPERATION: HUMAN TRAFFICKING AND TRAFFICKING IN CULTURAL PROPERTY

NEW

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Organised crime is a major, multi-faceted international threat and has no regard for borders. To deal with it, effective, well-structured cooperation is needed, as well as good mutual understanding between the judicial actors, in particular judges, prosecutors and investigators.

In view of the growing specialisation of the activities of criminal organisations, this innovative course addresses two subjects of increasing concern to State actors, which both require up-to-date technical knowledge.

Firstly, we will focus on the specific challenges of the investigation and prosecution of human trafficking by criminal networks, which are present on all the migration routes. Secondly, we will examine the trafficking of cultural property as a preferred means of money laundering used by criminal networks.

Each of these subjects will be covered by experts over two days, after a first day dedicated to general matters relating to international cooperation on organised crime.

Training objectives

- Acquire a basic grounding in the handling of organised crime offences;
- Learn more about human trafficking and the trafficking of cultural property, in particular the routes along which the offences are committed and the network's organisation and modes of action;
- Get a good working knowledge of the relevant international law;
- Learn the investigative techniques specific to these cases;
- Master the basics of international cooperation in this field.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

The educational resources and teaching methods mainly consist of input from experts, using documentation and course materials, sessions where participants can share good practices and visits to external institutions.

A test will be conducted at the start of the session to assess the participants' prior knowledge. There will be another test at the end of the session to evaluate what they have learned.

CYBERCRIME

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

This training provides an overview of the issues surrounding cybercrime and its international aspects, recent changes in the law, digital investigations and the judicial treatment of this type of crime.

Cyberspace, as well as being a factor of progress in many areas and a constant feature of everyday life, is also a space without borders in which cybercrime can flourish. Today's "cyberthreats" target not only businesses (the banking sector in particular), but also individuals and States. This session aims to help judges, prosecutors and investigating officers to improve their handling of proceedings, by focusing on practical approaches to the different phases (locating and identifying offenders, accessing data, measures to prevent the disappearance of evidence, etc.).

Training objectives

- Getting a clear idea of the threat posed by cybercrime, more particularly the ransomware phenomenon, child pornography, the dark web;
- Mastering the use of the mechanisms that exist for international mutual assistance in cybercrime investigation, the tools facilitating international police and judicial cooperation;
- Understanding how cryptocurrencies works and the systems in place for detecting and controlling cryptocurrencies;
- Discovering the systems that allow open source analysis, information gathering and investigations using open sources on the internet.

CORRUPTION: DETECTION, PREVENTION, REPRESSION

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Corruption affects all countries and poses a serious threat to democracy. Sometimes it reaches proportions such that it threatens to stifle economic growth and undermine efforts to introduce good governance. In the long term, it degrades the social fabric, disrupts the economy and weakens the political structure of States, to the detriment of their population.

This course is for judges and prosecutors, investigators and civil servants confronted with the administrative or judicial management of corruption cases (or similar) and their prevention. The aim is to raise awareness and train these professionals in both preventing and cracking down on this phenomenon. Organised in partnership with the French Anticorruption Agency (AFA), this interprofessional course will facilitate the sharing of experiences and provide technical and legal tools for detecting, regulating and dealing with this type of behaviour. The course includes a day organised with the National Public Service Institute (INSP).

Training objectives

- Participants will be familiarised with the main international anti-corruption standards and instruments;
- They will acquire a knowledge of the procedures set up by the different actors in the sector concerned to combat corruption. Participants will get an insight into the legal concepts, definitions and meanings (terminology) linked to the subject of the course;
- Finally, they will learn the practical aspects through the presentation of a concrete case involving the implementation of alternatives to prosecution or the specific features of corruption investigations.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

The programme brings together stakeholders from the different sectors concerned: The French Anticorruption Agency (AFA), representatives of the Network of Corruption Prevention Authorities, financial judges, prosecutors, specialised investigators, lawyers, academics, representatives of the Group of States against Corruption (GRECO), financial intelligence services such as the Intelligence Processing and Action against Illicit Financial Networks Unit (TRACFIN), high-ranking civil servants from the Ministries of Justice, Finance or Foreign Affairs, leaders from the private sector, etc.

They take part in the session in the form of lectures, round tables and debates in order to share their experience and knowledge of this problem and the steps taken to deal with it, with the aim of increasing awareness of the stakes involved and improving practices in order to prevent and clamp down on it more effectively, both in France and internationally. The session is intended to improve the knowledge and experience of prevention and detection mechanisms of judges and prosecutors, but also of members of government departments specialised in the fight against corruption. The training is primarily based on sharing experience and good practices. In particular, the course aims to raise awareness and improve knowledge of how to identify behaviours that constitute breaches of integrity. A test will be conducted at the start of the session to assess the participants' prior knowledge. There will be another test at the end of the session to evaluate what they have learned.

INTRA-FAMILIAL VIOLENCE

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Violence within family units is a scourge that requires an overarching and innovative judicial approach to deal with the civil and criminal issues involved, to protect victims and punish perpetrators. When faced with these situations, justice professionals need to have a shared knowledge base that allows them to understand the mechanisms of these types of violence and the systemic solutions that need to be implemented.

This training course offers an extensive overview of violence within the family. It will present the most recent legislative initiatives on the protection of victims of intra-familial violence, the management of perpetrators and the role of children within the institutional framework. It will also provide an analysis of the underlying psychological and sociological mechanisms, whilst extending the discussion to civil mutual legal assistance in international child abduction cases. Participants will have an opportunity to reflect together on possible policies for courts, covering both the civil and the criminal aspects as part of a process of setting up institutional partnerships

Training objectives

- Participants will be familiarised with the instruments used to combat intra-familial violence;
- They will also be trained to use the main instruments of criminal and civil mutual legal assistance concerning international child abduction cases;
- They will acquire a working knowledge of the procedures introduced by the actors concerned in the public and private sectors;
- Finally, they will be made aware of the notions of psychological trauma and the victim support issues.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

Researchers, judges, prosecutors, investigating officers and psychiatrists will present their work or their innovative practices in the field. Fruitful discussion after the presentations will be facilitated by the diverse backgrounds of the participants.

Participants will also be familiarised with the international law that will allow them to respond to issues involved in international child abduction cases. They will acquire a working knowledge of the instruments put in place to combat these types of violence (restraining orders, «grave danger» telephones, electronic «anti-approach» bracelets, etc.).

The presentations will be completed by a visit to an intra-familial violence victims' refuge. A test will be conducted at the start of the session to assess the participants' prior knowledge. There will be another test at the end of the session to evaluate what they have learned.

INVESTIGATING AND PROSECUTING: THE CHALLENGES OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

International criminal law and international humanitarian law have become components in conflicts in their own right, whilst they remain essential aspects of conflict settlement. They are constantly changing. Both international and national courts, which can be seised under the universal jurisdiction mechanism, will have to deal - and indeed are already dealing - with these particular proceedings. Subject to the challenges of international cooperation, the complexity of the offences and charges involved, they deal with all forms of traditional crime as well as emerging crimes; This course will enable participants to exchange views on the changing legal situation, and facilitate a dialogue between justice professionals on issues relating to investigations, international mutual assistance, and judgments in international criminal cases.

Training objectives

This course enables foreign judges, prosecutors and investigators to:

- Acquire theoretical and practical knowledge of the international criminal justice system;
- To get to grips with the legal and political issues involved in an international criminal case;
- Handle the administration of an international criminal trial;
- Understand the place of the victims in an international criminal case and their compensation.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

This course is designed to cover the legal and practical aspects of these issues, and should provide participants with useful tools they can use while presenting the political and diplomatic issues necessarily involved in this type of prosecution.

Involving national and international contributors, the course also includes a visit to the French gendarmerie forensic institute (IRCGN), and attendance at a trial at the Paris assize court if there is one in progress at the time of the course.

This face-to-face course is organised in 6 themes:

- A justice and a law under construction (the Rule of Law);
- Meeting the challenges of cooperation between States and the risk of politicisation;
- Overcoming temporal and geographical distance in the building of a case;
- Administering a «historic» trial in an international criminal case;
- Dealing with witnesses and oral evidence;
- How and who to compensate when there is a large number of victims.

The educational resources and teaching methods mainly consist of input from experts, using documentation and course materials, sessions where participants can share good practices and the evaluation of learning outcomes

A test will be conducted at the start of the session to assess the participants' prior knowledge. There will be another test at the end of the session to evaluate what they have learned.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Protection against legal liability is one of the main purposes of contracts in international trade. This requires the assurance that in the event of a dispute arising, it can be settled within a reasonable timeframe, by independent, impartial judges, familiar with business practice, in accordance with the law specified in the contract, by a decision that is rapidly enforceable and in a setting that ensures discretion in the proceedings. The use of arbitration, where it is provided for in the contract at issue or where it results from a subsequent agreement or is provided for in an investment agreement, and where it is part of a legal system capable of guaranteeing the enforcement of the ruling, contributes to the achievement of that objective.

In this respect, French law on arbitration, shaped by the case law of Court of Cassation and the Court of Appeal of Paris, before being enshrined in the Code of Civil Procedure, has the particularity of encouraging recourse to this alternative method of dispute resolution, notably by giving arbitrators priority in ruling on their own competence, by giving the parties equal rights in the choice of the arbitrators, by ensuring their independence and impartiality and by limiting the oversight of the state judge when seized of an appeal.

Training objectives

- Introduction to the different stages of arbitration proceedings.
- Reflection on the suitability of this method of dispute resolution in the participants' national contexts and in the international context.
- Reflection on their role, as State judges, in the control and enforcement of arbitral awards.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

The main educational resources and teaching methods used are: audiovisual aids, documentation and course materials, discussion sessions between participants to compare practices, visits.

An attendance sheet for each half-day's presence is provided at the end of the course as well as a certificate of completion of the course if the trainee has attended all of the sessions.

The trainer evaluates the progress made by each participant throughout the course, principally through practical exercises.

A test will be conducted at the start of the session to assess the participants' prior knowledge. There will be another test at the end of the session to evaluate what they have learned.

JUDICIAL MANAGEMENT

CONTEXT AND OBJECTIVES

Management is the art of using and coordinating an organisation's human and material resources to achieve its objectives. This requires setting objectives (strategic and operational), choosing the means of achieving them, implementing those means, controlling the implementation and the outcomes, and then making adjustments based on those controls.

Although judges and prosecutors are trained to carry out their professional duties, generally they do not receive any management training. And yet this is essential as they rise up the ranks to management positions. This is especially the case for new heads of courts, who will inevitably face human and organisational issues requiring specific training.

Training objectives

- Discovery of the management techniques suited to the particular structure of a court, particularly as regards the way it operates and the status of the judges and prosecutors working in it;
- Discovery of effective methods of leading a group, supporting staff and dealing with the natural resistance that arises when people are faced with a new situation.

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

The educational resources and teaching methods mainly consist of input from experts, using documentation and course materials, sessions where participants can share good practices and visits to external institutions.

The trainer evaluates the progress made by each participant throughout the course, principally through practical exercises.

A test will be conducted at the start of the session to assess the participants' prior knowledge. There will be another test at the end of the session to evaluate what they have learned.

EUNOMIE

EUNOMIE

The French National School for the Judiciary (ENM) has been providing practical professional training to the French judiciary and judges and prosecutors from foreign States since 1958. In creating this innovative network its aim was to give judges and prosecutors trained at the ENM a way of maintaining a special relationship, both with each other and with the School, and also to promote the notion of belonging to a professional body and an international judicial community.

For more information, go to: <https://www.enm.justice.fr/eunomie>

EUNOMIE's objectives are therefore:

- Strengthen the ties between the ENM and the judges and prosecutors trained at the School;
- Enable peers to exchange views on judicial practices and experiences;
- Disseminate general and professional ethical values and promote a common judicial culture.

Website : <https://www.enm.justice.fr/eunomie>

This platform enables foreign judges and prosecutors trained at the ENM to keep abreast of the latest international news from the ENM and to make a free application to register with the EUNOMIE network. Members have access to:

- A directory listing all the members of the network;
- National and international discussion forums;
- Mutual assistance forums for trainee judges and prosecutors arriving in France, or French trainee/serving judges and prosecutors going abroad;
- Training documents and e-training modules.
